3. Command Prompt (Compilation and Output)

Outlines of the workshop:

- Introduction to JAVA
- Features of JAVA
- OOPs Concept
- JDK, JRE, JVM
- Classes and Object
- Command Line Arguments
- Instances (Variables and Methods)
- Constructor
- Method Overloading and Overriding
- Constructor Overloading
- Call by Value and Call by Reference
- Abstract Class
- Interface

Feedback from Students: In this workshop the students were introduced to topics in JAVA Programming. Students got an idea how to write and run JAVA Programming, All the students really appreciated the contents that were discussed, and they realized that interactions like these can help them improve their learning. Students showed keen interest in attending more workshops like this in future.

Content Relevant: In this workshop students acknowledged knowledge of JAVA Programming. Java is a general-purpose computer programming language that is concurrent, class-based, object-oriented, and specifically designed to have as few implementation dependencies as possible. It is intended to let application developers "write once, run anywhere" (WORA), meaning that compiled Java code can run on all platforms that support Java without the need for recompilation.
